Graduate students may enhance their studies with relevant experience through programs offered by the Career Center. Cooperative education and internships are available. Cooperative Education requires students to complete two work periods, one of which may be a summer. Internships are one semester in duration and may occur during any academic period (fall, spring, summer). Students are encouraged to seek specific information prior to, or immediately upon, enrollment in the graduate program.

These credit-hour programs will be included on a graduate student's transcript but cannot be used to satisfy course-hour requirements on a graduate student's program of study.

More than ever, global economic development, scientific exploration, and security are interconnected. The International Institute at Mississippi State University fully integrates our land-grant institution's 130-plus years of leadership, teaching, research, and service into the global arena. Founded in June 2011, the Institute serves as the hub of the University's international education, global engagement, and development activities.

The MSU International Institute enriches and expands the academic and cultural experiences of faculty, students, staff, and community through global outreach, research, and academic programs. The Institute houses academic programs through the Office of Study Abroad, responsible for providing support for faculty and students to study, observe, and understand divergent cultures and traditions internationally, and the English as a Second Language (ESL) Center, home to many international students who are working to improve their English proficiency. The Institute's International Services Office also provides immigration advisory service for faculty and students, as well as assistance for faculty, staff, and students traveling abroad.

MSU is committed to international partnerships and impact on a global scale. The MSU International Institute welcomes university-to-university exchanges and collaborations with international counterparts. The Institute also develops, promotes, and aids faculty and student engagement in international scholarly and research activities by maintaining relationships with sponsoring agencies such as the Fulbright Foundation.

The University's strengths in capacity-building make it well positioned to address many of the world's more challenging problems. MSU faculty and researchers collaborate with counterparts overseas to improve academic and research capabilities, to share knowledge, and to address issues that require a range of technical, scientific, and policy expertise. The International Institute's international research development unit aids in promoting the skills and expertise of our faculty and identifying potential interdisciplinary research and outreach activities.
